THE CHAIRMAN'S NOTES

Blind Voters

IT will be remembered by readers of the "Review" that I sent a letter to the Editor on the 5th October, 1931, asking blind voters to observe what procedure was adopted by the officials in the polling booths at the General Election, and to record this evidence and send their views about it to me.

The replies which have reached me in answer to my letter have proved conclusively that I was right in my opinion that an amendment to make the law such that blind persons could take a relation or friend whom they trusted to the polling booth to mark the ballot paper for them, or have it marked by the official as is the case at present, is greatly desired by blind men and women. In two cases only blind men said that they were perfectly satisfied with the present state of affairs.

Eighty-two correspondents were insistent on the injustice done to the blind man by the present method of voting. Over and over again rang the phrases, "One feels a nuisance as a blind person"; "There is too much unnecessary ceremony and fuss"; "It is impossible for a blind person to feel that the secrecy of the ballot is his as it is sighted citizens." Some incidents have indeed so embarrassed many blind persons that they have decided never to use their vote again.

The most remarkable thing about all these letters, however, is the way they show that the present law is not strictly adhered to and is very often not even known by polling officials. Dozens of instances are given, almost every one differing on one point or another. The law as it stands at present reads as follows: "The presiding officer on the application of any voter who is incapacitated by blindness or other physical cause from voting in manner prescribed by this Act, shall, in the presence of the agents of the candidates, cause the vote of such voter to be marked on a ballot paper in manner directed by such voter, and the ballot paper to be placed in the ballot box." In only a few cases apparently has this exact procedure been followed. Very often the agents of the candidates have not been present and the privacy which is clearly intended by the Act to be given to a blind man has not been enforced. In letter after letter the complaint is made that other officials, a policeman, or even other voters in the room could have overheard the question to the blind man and his answers.

Several people tell me that one has only to be firm with the officials to make them adopt more or less the procedure that one wants. In several instances the blind person has persuaded the official to hold his hand and enable him to mark his cross himself. Often when the blind man has insisted, his wife has been permitted at least to stay in the room. (This is one point on which St. Dunstaners and other blind people both feel strongly. They wish their wives to be allowed to stay with them even if they cannot mark the ballot paper, and they are extremely indignant when they are turned out with the other people.)

It is evident indeed from all these letters that the present state of affairs is not considered satisfactory. Although the officials are sworn to secrecy the blind man naturally does not care for them to know which way he has accorded his vote. I have been given instances indeed when it is definitely unfair to and even against the interests of the blind man that his choice should be known to the particular officials at his polling station. Sometimes the candidates are customers of the blind man and any outside knowledge of his vote may do him definite harm. In any small village indeed it is important that no man, official or otherwise, knows how another man has voted.

Another point which has aroused a storm of indignation is the fact that in many cases the blind man has had to acknowledge himself illiterate, and to have had the illiteracy form filled up by the officials before being allowed to vote. This again has been the form of procedure carried out in some places but not in others. Several blind people have protested at this classification of the blind as illiterates, but their protests have not had the slightest effect.

In almost every letter I have received, my suggestion that the best way out of all these difficulties is that wife or friend should be permitted the option of marking the blind man's paper has been accepted as the best possible solution. Some people have offered solutions of their own, such as having pricked papers, or cards written in braille, or cards with holes in the spaces where the cross must be made. The main objection that I have to raise to any of these suggestions is that they are difficult to carry out in practice. Ballot papers differ in size, and the number of candidates varies from constituency to constituency, and from election to election, and a standard ballot paper for the blind, or guide for marking, would be impossible.

I received about one hundred letters on this interesting and extremely important subject. Many of these letters, however, referred to more than one case. One home teacher wrote that at a Home Teachers' Conference, 112 people voted (as against 18) for the proposal: "That blind voters should be allowed to have with them a relative or friend who would mark their voting paper according to their instructions." Another letter which was sent to me had a petition attached to it signed by forty-four blind people asking that a change in the law might be effected. Other people who wrote said that not only they themselves wanted the change, but almost all the other blind people whom they knew.

This summary of the opinions contained in the letters I have received is published for the interest and information of my friends. I shall take an early opportunity of bringing the evidence to the notice of the appropriate authorities with a view to securing the goodwill that is required for carrying the amendment into law. I might mention that in Canada, Australia, and Germany the blind voter is given the choice of having his paper marked by the official at the polling booth, or by a friend or relative accompanying him.

IAN FRASER.

Message from Australian St. Dunstaners

I have received a cable from Elmer Glew, whom so many of our St. Dunstaners will remember, sending heartiest greetings to all St. Dunstaners throughout the Empire, from their Australian comrades who recently held a most successful Reunion at Melbourne.

I have sent an appropriate reply on behalf of all St. Dunstaners.

We hear that—

CLUB-SWINGING is a favourite exercise of F. Gallagher, of Strabane, who has hit upon the good idea of swinging to music provided by his gramophone.

***

The 18-year-old son of J. Thompson, of Bolton, has enlisted with the Royal Corps of Signals, and expects to be called up in May.

***

W. Priest, of Exeter, has made great strides with basket-trays, and has sold quite a number already.

***

The January Reunion was the first gathering F. Fowler, of York, and his wife had attended, and they enjoyed it from beginning to end. "The best show I've ever been to," declared Fowler afterwards.

***

Mrs. Cole, wife of A. G. Cole, of Portslade, has been in hospital suffering from bronchial pneumonia following an attack of influenza, but is making fairly good progress now.

***

G. A. Millen, of Birchington, again showed a variety of articles at the Margate Annual Exhibition; his stand, in the words of the Isle of Thanet Gazette, "proving as popular as it did at past exhibitions."

***

A. J. Wiltshire, of Herne Hill, has just taken the first prize at a Camberwell whist drive, bringing his total for the past six months to six. An appreciative article appeared in Reynolds's News on 14th February, describing Wiltshire as "Blind whist champion of South London."

R. J. Williams, of Southwick, has won yet another prize for fancy dress, this time at Tillings' Sports Club Carnival held at Hove Town Hall. Williams writes that he went as a Red Indian in a costume which was originally made by an Indian from the skins and feathers of wild animals and birds. He was awarded the third prize (an oak clock) from a very large number of entries.

The baptism of the infant son of G. A. and Mrs. Millen, of Birchington, was quite a St. Dunstan's function, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. West, of Minster, Miss Lloyd, who made a special journey from London, and Mr. T. H. Panton, of the Technical Staff, acting as sponsors.

Raymond George conducted himself with the greatest decorum throughout the whole of the ceremony.

"Happy though Blind"

says Reveille, the journal of the Returned Sailors' and Soldiers' Imperial League of Australia, (N.S.W. Branch) writing of our Colonial St. Dunstaner, Frank Hyde. The article goes on:—

One of the greatest enjoyments that Frank Hyde, blinded Digger, of Bathurst, gets out of life, is in attending the annual reunion of his battalion—the 36th. He has not missed a reunion so far.

A native of Bathurst, Frank was a corporal in the 36th Battalion, when he was blinded by an enemy bomb at Messines on 27th June, 1917. Frank and five other Diggers were holding a bombing post, when they were attacked by twenty Germans, one of the Australians being killed and the other five wounded.

Hyde was a patient at St. Dunstan's for eighteen months, and was taught basket making and poultry farming. However, on returning to Bathurst he adopted neither of those avocations, but took over the management of a tea shop.

Frank remains cheerful despite his handicap, and as long as he can meet the boys of the 36th for a yarn over old times he feels that there is nothing for him to grumble about.

A very good photograph of Hyde accompanies the paragraph.

Netting Room Notes

There are a good many beginners in the Netting Department at present, all of whom are getting on well. We congratulate W. A. Helm, F. W. Culshaw, J. Ryan, and R. Greenacre on passing their bag test. A. E. Ahrens has finished his full course and has done excellently.

Men will be pleased to hear that Her Majesty the Queen ordered three pairs of reins from the British Industries Fair at Olympia.

Lieut.-Col. Sir Douglas Powell, Bart., C.B.E.

ST. DUNSTANERS will regret to hear of the death of Lieut.-Colonel Sir Douglas Powell, Bt., C.B.E., on Sunday, 28th February, at the age of 57.

Sir Douglas Powell had always been interested in the work of St. Dunstan's and in September, 1923, was elected a member of the Annexe Sub-Committee. In June, 1928, he was elected to the Executive Council.

His military record is both long and distinguished. He went all through the South African War, and took part in the Relief of Ladysmith. At the beginning of the Great War he was a company commander in the 2nd Royal Welch Fusiliers. He obtained his majority in May, 1915. In September, 1915, he was given a General Staff appointment at the War Office, and in April, 1917, was transferred as a staff officer to the Air Ministry. Here he remained until his retirement in November, 1919. For his war services he was given the brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel and was created C.B.E.

Since the War most of his time was given to work for the United Service Fund. It was decided in 1920 that the surplus which remained from the business of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Canteens during the War should be administered as a public trust for the benefit of sufferers from the War. Its administration was organised by Lord Byng of Vimy. Sir Douglas Powell became its administrative agent for London and the Home Counties Area, a post which he held until his death.

As everybody who came into contact with him in the work of St. Dunstan's knew, Sir Douglas was a fine worker and a splendid colleague. His experiences during the South African War and the Great War had given him sympathy with and an understanding of a multitude of different types of men with whom he was brought into contact. He had an instinctive feeling for comradeship and a personal touch which imparted the power to smooth away difficulties. He was completely trusted by everybody who knew him, true-hearted and hospitable, the best and most loyal of friends.

Success for the St. Dunstan's Singers

THE St. Dunstan's Singers were so successful in their January broadcast that they have been asked to go "on the air" again on 21st April, at 6.30 p.m. In view of the fact that competition for broadcasting is growing more and more severe, this must be considered a fine feather in the cap for our Singers. Their programme will again be relayed from London Regional.

Brighton Notes

THE practical interest which the Grocers' Federation of Great Britain continues to take in St. Dunstan's was again demonstrated at the Old Ship Hotel, on the 23rd February, when Mr. Kent, secretary of the Federation, made a long journey from Newcastle to Brighton in order to be present at the annual party given to our men living in and around Brighton. Among the guests, which numbered over 300, were the Mayors and Mayoresses of Brighton and Hove, and our Chaplain, the Rev. Eyton Jones. The evening's programme commenced with a concert, and for an hour we experienced the delights of music, song and jest. Among the speeches made during the evening was one by Mr. Kent, who ended with a reminder that there was a warm spot in the heart of every member of the Federation for St. Dunstan's, and also an amusing and witty one by Mr. Baxter. When that indefatigable worker, Mr. Yeoman, called upon the Matron for a few words, the cheers nearly lifted the roof, and at the conclusion of a speech in which the Matron surpassed herself, everybody rose and sang: "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." A very successful evening ended just before midnight with the singing of "God save the King."

Blind Men as Oarsmen

AN interesting argument has been going on in the correspondence columns of The Times during the last month as to whether blind men make successful oarsmen. It seems to be the almost unanimous opinion of the best-known rowing men of the country that blind men are extremely useful in boats and can take their places with any crew and in any position. In a letter from Mr. Steve Fairbairn, who is the greatest rowing authority, he says:—

"St. Dunstan's have a regatta at Putney every year, tub pair-oared races. It is amazing to see the perfect timing of the two oars. One would say both oars were worked by one machine, and they are. That machine is the sense of feeling the time, or sensing it."

Mr. H. A. Game, writing from the Junior Carlton Club, also says:—

"Towards the end of the Great War I had the great pleasure of teaching and coaching the War-blinded men who came to St. Dunstan's in the art of rowing. I found there was no difficulty whatever in teaching them and in getting them to row in time. I am quite sure that if they had been opposed by a sighted crew drawn from comparative numbers and with the same lack of previous knowledge, they would have more than held their own."

It is good to know in what high repute St. Dunstan's oarsmen are held by men whose words on rowing carry very great weight.

Sweepstake Luck

MOST St. Dunstaners will know by this time that P. Nuyens, leader of the St. Dunstan's Band, drew Merriment IV in the Irish Sweep. Unfortunately his luck did not hold in the race itself, although his chance was certainly as great as that of the holders of Forbra, the outsider who came in first.

Readers of the "Review" will notice that our own sweepstake for the Derby has already opened. It may not be as big as the Irish Sweep, but it provides just as much fun and in its own way as much excitement.

"In Memory"

SAPPER T. BAKER
(26th Field Company, Royal Engineers)

We very much regret to announce the death of T. Baker, on the 11th January. Baker had been working exceedingly hard for some months before his death in connection with his small wireless business, and as a result his health suffered. He was taken ill in December with pleurisy, but appeared to recover from this; then at the beginning of January he developed pneumonia and was admitted to hospital on the 8th January, where he died.

Baker was trained in joinery, and made good progress at this work. In 1930 he developed his business by taking on the sale of wireless components, etc., and was doing very well indeed just before his death.

The funeral took place on the 20th January, at Islington Cemetery, and was attended by many relatives and friends. Beautiful wreaths were received from all sources, including one from the Buffalo Lodges of which Baker was a member, and one in the form of our badge from Captain Fraser and his many comrades at St. Dunstan's.

We extend our sincerest sympathy to Mrs. Baker and her four children in their bereavement.

PETTY OFFICER J. HUNTER
(Royal Navy)

We regret to announce the death of J. Hunter on the 9th February, 1932, after a very long illness. Hunter was invalided out of the Navy in 1915, after serving for over twenty-two years, and his sight then gradually failed. In 1920 he came to St. Dunstan's to learn mat-making, and, in spite of poor health, he took a great interest in his work. In December, 1930, however, he was compelled to give up work altogether, and he was admitted to hospital. He returned home in September of last year, but his health became worse, and he was again admitted to hospital in December last, where he died.

The funeral took place on the 13th February, at Heaton Cemetery, Bolton, at 3.30 p.m., and the service was conducted by the Rev. H. D. Walkden, Vicar of St. George the Martyr. Many relatives and friends attended, including a fellow St. Dunstaner and his wife, F. Tait, of Bolton. Numerous beautiful wreaths were received, including one in the form of our badge from Captain Fraser and his many comrades at St. Dunstan's.

We extend our sincerest sympathy to Mrs. Hunter and her son in their sad loss.

[Mrs. Hunter and son wish to thank all comrades, sisters, and the Matron, Miss Thellusson, for all kind sympathy in their bereavement.]

CORPORAL J. ROBJOHNS
(9th Devonshire Regiment)

We regret to record the death of J. Robjohns on the 15th February. He enlisted in the Devonshire Regiment in 1900, and served in India and at home as a drummer, and later rose to the rank of corporal. In 1914 he was one of the first to be called up, and went to France in 1916. In October, 1917, he was wounded at Ypres and lost one eye; he was taken prisoner, and through lack of medical attention for several days, he completely lost his sight. In 1918 he came to St. Dunstan's, where he learnt boot-repairing, and, after leaving Headquarters, he set up a nice little business at Tiverton. Robjohns was always cheery, and he was greatly respected in his neighbourhood. His health had always been very good, but last month he was suddenly taken ill, and it was found necessary for him to be admitted to hospital for an operation, from which he never recovered.

The funeral took place on the 20th instant, at Tiverton Cemetery, the Rev. W. Solomon, Wesleyan Minister, officiating. Robjohns was awarded military honours, a party from the Devonshire Regiment (Exeter Depot) acting as bearers. In addition to representatives of the Devonshire Regiment Old Comrades' Association, a bugler from the Depot also attended, and played the "Last Post" and "Reveille" at the graveside. Many relatives and friends attended, including Miss Ayre, from St. Dunstan's, and two fellow St. Dunstaners, W. Carnell of Bampton, and J. Rendall of Tiverton.

Among the numerous beautiful wreaths received was one in the form of our badge from Captain Fraser and his many comrades at St. Dunstan's.

Robjohns leaves a wife and three children, to whom we extend our sincere sympathy.

FOR the third time it has been decided to hold a sweepstake on the Derby for St. Dunstaners. The rules for the sweepstake are set out clearly below, and entrants must conform exactly with them. It must be understood that this competition is solely confined to St. Dunstan's men, and applications for tickets from any other person will be disregarded. ### After-Care Reunion PRESTON.

THE Annual Reunion of the North Lancashire area was held at the Bull and Royal Hotel, Preston, on 6th February, and was well attended. Mr. Swain presided, and read a letter from Captain Fraser, in which he said he recalled with pleasure the last occasion on which he was present, and much regretted his unavoidable absence. A vote of thanks to Mr. Swain was proposed by W. Allen, and supported by J. Walch.

What Do You Think?

A suggestion has been made by J. Sheehy, of Dover, that St. Dunstaners, when attending Reunions should wear their War medals. The suggestion is interesting and might be popular as it seems appropriate that at such old-soldier gatherings medals should be worn. We should like to hear from St. Dunstaners what they think about this matter.

Escorts' Invitation 9-Mile Handicap

The Escorts' Walking Race was one of the most exciting events which have happened at St. Dunstan's for some time. Thirty competitors took part and both St. Dunstaners and their guests seemed to enjoy the day equally. The race was started by H. V. Thompson and after tea at Headquarters, prizes were presented by A. Brown, and a neat little speech of thanks to the escorts made by H. Kerr. Captain Fraser came in during the evening and spoke appreciatively of the willing and expert services given to St. Dunstaners by the members of all the well-known walking clubs. A very enjoyable concert followed, and an event which is unique in the annals of St. Dunstan's came to an end in an atmosphere of cheery and good comradeship.
